

CODE OF ETHICS AND BUSINESS CONDUCT

V2 Oct.1, 2023

Message from General and Legal Management

At Echosens, it is important to us not only to succeed but to do so correctly, abiding by the law and upholding the values that we embody. Together, we are committed to liver health through creating solutions and value for our customers and shareholders, and through offering opportunities to our employees. Our shared commitment to the highest ethical standards and to making a positive difference in everything we do is what makes Echosens such a unique company.

Our commitment is to go beyond mere compliance. We innovate with integrity, using our understanding of technology and its impact on women and men to develop inclusive, responsible and sustainable solutions to complex business and societal challenges. For this reason, we want to provide our employees with the means to make the right decisions, act responsibly and express themselves with the fullest confidence.

With our Code of Ethics and Business Conduct, we want to help our employees make ethical behavior a part of their day-to-day activities; whether that be within the company, in dealings with our customers, our business partners or within our communities.

Our Code is more than just a document; it reflects the way we behave, work and lead. It is our means for improving our business performance and building on Echosens' reputation in the market. The activities and products of the Echosens Group have an impact on people's health. It is for this reason in particular that Echosens places ethics at the heart of its business.

Because Echosens ensures compliance with applicable treaties, laws and regulations, particularly as regards the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms, the health and safety of people, the environment and ethics.

And because it is essential that these principles be supported by appropriate organization, this Code of Ethics and Business Conduct represents the commitment of Echosens managers to compliance with its terms, and to ensuring that it is implemented and followed. It applies to all Echosens employees, including interns and temporary staff, as well as to all providers and in particular service providers, agents, representatives and subcontractors.

Echosens' reputation is based on everyone adhering to shared rules, practices and principles that guide our daily conduct around the world.

Implementation and Compliance

The Code of Ethics is designed to ensure the integrity of Echosens' operations. It is intended for distribution to all Group employees, in their local language,

The Code of Ethics is available on the Echosens website (www.echosens.com).

It may be revised at any time to take account of changes in applicable legislation or regulations, and will be the subject of a dated and signed update.

1. PRINCIPLES AND AIMS

Echosens complies with and upholds all of the principles in the Global Compact launched by the United Nations in 2000, in particular those relating to fundamental principles and rights at work:

- Elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation
- Elimination of all forms of forced and compulsory labor
- Prohibition of child labor
- Upholding the freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining

Accountability, fairness, setting an example, respect for people's rights, environmental protection, patient and consumer interests, transparency, integrity and loyalty are the fundamental principles that guide our ethical values.

Accountability: in addition to strict compliance with the laws, regulations and ethical principles that govern our activities around the world, as a healthcare company we are committed to conducting our business responsibly.

Setting an example: more than a principle, it is a duty that ensures the credibility of our actions both inside our company and with our customers and partners.

Treating people fairly and with respect: we strive to create a work environment based on mutual respect and trust, both in relationships between the company and its employees and between employees themselves. These principles also apply to our relationships with partners.

Primacy of patient needs and interests: as a stakeholder in the healthcare industry, our primary focus is on improving patient outcomes and developing innovative solutions to meet their needs around the world, in compliance with applicable regulations.

Respect for the environment: committed to an active approach to environmental protection, we seek to integrate environmentally-friendly practices into our business activities through a sustainable and inclusive development policy.

Transparency: whether in the field of research or in our daily relationships with healthcare professionals, patients, public authorities and shareholders, we have a responsibility to act transparently.

Integrity and loyalty: we are committed not to engage in conduct that may corrupt relationships between individuals and entities, or that violates free competition.

It would be impossible for this Code of Ethics to detail every potential situation in which an employee may be exposed to a risk. Each employee must therefore use his or her own common sense when applying these principles, by referring to the existing rules and guidelines and, if necessary, seeking the opinion of his or her line manager.

2. COMMITMENT

As Group employees, each employee must understand the standards and policies, comply with them, ask questions and raise any compliance concerns that they may have.

Equally, each employee must report any wrongdoing that takes place in Echosens. If you witness or suspect that a law has not been complied with or that policies have been breached, you must report it promptly to your manager and to the Human Resources and Legal departments.

If circumstances make it necessary to protect your anonymity, you can use the internal whistleblowing procedure to make your report.

The conditions of access and contact for this procedure are available on the Echosens website.

All employees must undertake to behave as ethically as possible, specifically by acknowledging that they have read and agreed to comply with the principles of this Code of Ethics and Business Conduct.
